Aim

The aim of this course is to deepen and broaden the knowledge specialisation of the students in film and media production. Through work on one or more projects, the students are challenged to make assessments and choices from an artistic, social and ethical perspective.

Course Content

In this laboratory course, the students work in groups and/or individually with already developed ideas, using appropriate methods for the development of their personal expression from an artistic, social and ethical perspective.

The students use the methods, tools and equipment needed in order to create the desired focus and/or production of their chosen project. Before each production, SKH makes a startup decision based on the manus/synopsis, budget, risk assessment and production plan. Där teamarbete behövs för att slutföra produktionen ska teamet i första hand bestå av studenter.

The students continue to build up their individual reference lists.

Teaching Forms

Individually designed, area specific exercises. Seminars. Supervision in groups and individually. All laboratory students are part of one or more process groups which meet regularly throughout the course. All laboratory students are required to keep a process diary.

Intended Learning Outcomes

After completing the course the student is able to:

- be able to formulate choices made in their project with regard to relevant artistic, social and ethical aspects in the field of film and/or media.

Examination

Examination takes place at the end of the course in the form of an oral presentation of material produced and the student's process diary.

Student failing the ordinary level examination shall have the right to resit a maximum of four additional examinations in order to achieve a Pass grade.

If a student has a decision from Stockholm University of the Arts about special pedagogical support due to functional variance, the examiner can decide on alternative forms of examination in consultation with the student.
